New Humor Column Debuts – “Dock Tale Hour”

Fairfax Station, VA, May 2, 2014 – There’s a new humor columnist in town. “Dock Tale Hour” debuts this month in Laker Magazine and its creator, Kimberly “Kimba” Dalferes, is the proud mama of this new feature.

“I’m thrilled that the column debuts during National Mental Health Month,” said Dalferes, who is also the author of I Was In Love With a Short Man Once. “A little laughter always helps improve my mood. That and a bag of Cheetos, and a sunny day at the lake.”

Laker Magazine, a bi-monthly publication of Times-World LLC, focuses on life at and around Smith Mountain Lake, Virginia and beyond. For example, the current issue highlights ideas for family fun all summer long, golfing tips, and popular dining destinations accessible by water on Smith Mountain Lake. The magazine is offered in both print and online and will now also provide a little light-hearted humor about lake life.

“After meeting for lunch and chatting for nearly two hours, I knew Kim would make a great addition to the corps of Laker freelance writers,” said Andie Gibson, Laker Magazine Editor.

Gibson also noted that Laker Magazine is always looking for fresh ideas for stories and features. If you would like to share a story suggestion with her, she can be reached at Andie.Gibson@smithmountainlaker.com or 540.721.4675, ext. 402.

If you’re looking to add a smile or a chuckle to your day, or maybe you’re wondering what fish and relatives have in common, you can read this month’s column to find out: <http://www.smithmountainlake.com/lifeStyle/lakerMagazine/wb/322397>
